The topic is interesting, the authors have worked hard; overall, their tables should be summarized and better designed. It is mandatory to note the ethical approval code in the Materials and Methods. I found some mistakes in statistics; the total number of percentages in some parts is either over or under 100%. The authors should correct these mistakes. For example, in the copied and pasted phrase below, the total percentage is 104%. There are a couple of these mistakes in different tables; these errors should be revised. It is better if the authors provide diagrams for the results of their study. The results section is better summarized and focused on more important subjects.
