

Review of: "Skilling Up for Tomorrow's Cities: The Workforce of Smart Cities"

Tanpat Kraiwanit¹

¹ Rangsit University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This is a good and interesting paper. While the current focus on specific occupational profiles is valuable, expanding the research scope to include a more diverse range of roles and skills relevant to smart cities could provide a more comprehensive understanding of workforce needs. Furthermore, adding empirical data, such as case studies or surveys, could strengthen the paper's arguments and provide practical insights into how these occupational profiles function in real-world smart city projects.