The article in question could benefit significantly from a clearer structure and a more effective presentation of key ideas. In the case of the introduction, it can be made more concise and engaging, reinforcing the overview of what the article will address, including the crucial importance of higher education in Tamil Nadu and the relevance of the proposed reforms.

It could also be beneficial to strategically use more subheadings that divide the content into logical sections that make it easier for the reader to navigate and understand the content.

To support the arguments presented in the article, it is suggested to integrate relevant statistical data, such as providing more information on the expansion of the higher education sector and the impact of policies on equity.

Finally, it is invited to include discussions on the challenges and limitations associated with the proposed reforms in higher education. Addressing potential obstacles will provide a balanced perspective and demonstrate a comprehensive understanding of the topic.

With these improvements, the article will achieve greater clarity, consistency, and will be more appealing to the intended audience.
