

Review of: "Theorizing the Normalization of Plantation Agriculture in Colombia"

Ary Widiyanto

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

In my opinion, the redaction style is difficult to understand. I believe the author should use professional translation software. The draft analyzes past study findings more than it delivers them and those from the Salamina interview. Many concepts are not specified in the draft and are used in an unorganized manner. The author's work was more individualized. Hence, the scientific publication must use more third-person tellers. The paper flow is not well organized. Needs a major revision prior to submission elsewhere.