

Review of: "Using Taxes to Attract the Creative Class in the Presence of a Region-Specific Rent"

Wu Zheng¹

¹ Hohai University

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

This paper is very interesting. Examines the relationship between rents, taxes and the creative class in specific areas. Through the establishment of a theoretical model, the paper draws conclusions. The article is clear, the method is appropriate, and the research conclusion is objective. However, there are still some minor problems for the authors to refer to: 1. Some concepts in the article should be briefly introduced. 2. This paper establishes a static model. But in fact, many external factors can have some influence on the study subjects. Therefore, does the author need to propose relevant hypotheses before establishing the model?