Dear Editor,

Thank you for sending me this paper for review.

After an interesting introduction on the availability of drugs in certain African countries, there are the description of the tools used in this type of work and the description of the hospital where the study took place, then the authors report the objectives of the study, the results, the discussion and finally the conclusion.

Study limitations are included.

The document is well referenced.

The quality of the language used in this article seems correct to me.

It is necessary to make certain corrections to the article before its publication.

I made some suggestions for improvement.

Cordially.
