Thank you for your submission; it was a real pleasure reading your work, and it is very much needed in the current literature.

Below, I will provide some comments which I hope you will find useful and that will help to enhance the article.

- The introduction and background are well-written and provide good information about the current picture.
- In terms of ethical approval, it is not mentioned who provided ethical clearance. Please could you state this in the ethical consideration paragraph?
- Particularly on ethical considerations, I see that minors took part in the study. Did you seek consent from their guardian/parent before the interviews? This is not mentioned in the article.
- Discussion/conclusions: this section is very brief, and it ends abruptly. I would recommend adding more details. What are the lessons learnt, and what should happen next? How can schools support their pupils?
