Firstly, I would like to appreciate the author for his efforts to collect and compare the information in his intended overview between Covid-19 , MERS, SARS and H1N1.

However, some points must be taken into consideration from his side for better perception and these can be summarized as per below :

1-The first paragraph of introduction has more than needed reference background as they are not new information to be known.

2-Figures are essential to emphasize the mechanism of action for Covid-19 pandemic.

3-For better and prompt understanding the common in between and the differences of the above mentioned disease , tables are required .

4-It will be more solid review if newer references had been used.
