Dear Authors,

I hope this message finds you well. I have had the opportunity to review your manuscript. Your work addresses an important and sensitive topic, and I believe it has the potential to make a valuable contribution to the field. However, there are several points that need to be addressed before publication:

1. While your manuscript references a key point regarding the heightened risk of HIV/AIDS among women and children due to sexual and gender-based violence, I suggest updating this section with the most current and relevant literature. Additionally, the review section should incorporate more recent references to enhance its comprehensiveness.
2. If your manuscript includes figures or images from other sources, it is essential to ensure that proper permissions have been obtained from the third parties who hold the copyright for these materials. Please provide clarification on this matter.
3. The methodology section in your manuscript lacks sufficient detail to allow for replication. It is essential to provide a clear and comprehensive explanation of your research methods.
4. There appear to be some issues with in-text citations. Please carefully review and correct any errors.

I understand the importance of your research, and I believe that with these improvements, your manuscript can make a significant contribution to the field. Please address these comments in your revised manuscript.

Thank you.
