The background in the introduction does not show the research problem clearly, and along with strong and relevant supporting data, the literature review is too much and needs to be simplified. It also does not show a strong theoretical basis for conducting research. In addition, there is no explanation of the research gap in the literature review. The logic flow of this article is also very difficult to understand, so it has minimal contribution to the development of science, unlike the structure of articles in general, which contains introduction, method, discussion, and conclusion. As a result, the reader becomes less interested. The abstract and discussion are also incoherent.
