

Review of: "Antimicrobial Ayurveda Crops as Superfoods for Export, Conservation & Farmers' Benefit"

Rina Rani Ray

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

The review focusses on some traditional aspects of herbal therapeutic sources. The Introduction part may be more concise, and some irrelevant lines like "Noncontagious diseases ... deaths " may be deleted. The author should describe how these superfoods can check microbial infections and thereby be considered potent for checking AMR. Is it just based on total phenolic content (TPC)? However, in my opinion, a table may be given to specify the antimicrobial activities of each plant source discussed. The authors must clearly highlight what they intend to say with "Antimicrobial Ayurveda Crops" and provide a suitable conclusion.