

Review of: "Ancient DNA Clarifies the Identity and Geographic Origin of the Holotype of the Genus Ctenomys"

G. I. Shenbrot¹

¹ Ben-Gurion University of the Negev, Israel

Potential competing interests: No potential competing interests to declare.

It is a really good paper. Basically, it can be published as is.

I have only two minor comments:

1. Legend to figure 5. – Please explain better what the x-axis is.
2. Please provide the map (possibly in an appendix) with the geographic ranges of Ctenomys species other than C. minutus, C. torquatus, and C. pearsoni mentioned in the text.